

NIGHT WATCHMAN DEAD IN ELEVATOR

Attempt to Move Car Discloses
He Had Been Crushed to Death.

When David Francis, engineer of the Knickerbocker Theatre building, Broadway, near Thirty-ninth Street, went to work before the opening of business today he discovered that the elevator was stuck between the seventh and eighth floors. On investigation he found the dead body of George Bolter, night watchman, crushed between the floor of the elevator and the door of the wire cage surrounding the shaft.

During the night Bolter had evidently intended to go from the seventh to another floor, and had used the elevator. In some unexplained manner Bolter's head was caught in the top of the door and as the elevator proceeded up it crushed his body.

The body was sent to the West Thirtieth street police station. The superintendent of the building, who refused all information to the police, said he did not know where Bolter lived. He had been employed there for several months.

Friedman Says McNally Didn't Own Hotel He Sold.

Morris Friedman, of No. 43 Prince street, Newark, who says he was swindled by Thomas J. McNally out of $10,000, caused McNally's arrest last night by Detective-Sergeant McConville. The police say McNally has served a term in jail for robbing the mails.

Friedman says he ran a saloon at No. 1113 Third Avenue. He met McNally and bought from him the Algonquin Hotel at Saratoga and paid him $4,000 down on it. Afterward learning that McNally did not own it, he says he also bought three Long Island lots for $300 each, and when he went to look for them he found they were back in the woods, had been sold for taxes, and were worth about $5 an acre. McNally ran the Yale Hotel, One Hundred and Eighty Avenue and One Hundred and Fifteenth Street, until two months ago, when he lost his license through trouble with the Excise Department.

MRS. "ALLIEN" HITS BOOKIES FOR $30,000

Heirress to Lorillard's Rancocas
Makes Coup on Track with Miniota.

Mrs. Lillian Barnes-Allen-Livingston, who as Lillian Allen, inherited the famous Rancocas stock farm from the late Pierre Lorillard, is to-day depositing in her bank $30,000, which she took away from the bookmakers at Aqueduct yesterday on a well-played coup.

Mrs. Livingston, who was married to former Commissioner of Public Works George Livingston last March, breeds her own horses, gets many yearlings and races a selected few under the name of Mrs. Barnes. But she has had bad luck ever since she started to race her own horses until yesterday. Then she made up for her losses.

The horse was Miniota, a colt, against which the bookmakers laid odds of six and five to one. In his last race he ran a poor second to Purlane in the mud, and when he was entered in the first race of six furlongs yesterday, Oraculum, with 125 pounds up and ridden by Miller, was the favorite. Elliott, ridden by Sewell, was made second choice.

Matt Penkes, trainer for Mrs. Livingston, informed her yesterday that he certainly had the winner of the race in Miniota and plans were laid accordingly. Miniota was not galloped on the track in the morning, so the clockers could not get his speed.

Mrs. Livingston sent her money into the betting ring at the opening of the betting. Six to one was the price then offered against her colt. She thought the odds would go up and ordered her commissioner to wait. He waited until almost the last minute, when the horses were at the post. Then he commenced to take the bets at six to one, and so quickly did he put the money down that the odds only fell to five to one before he had it all placed.

Miniota, ridden by Finn, went to the front after three furlongs, and from that to the wire he had the race his

KING EDWARD HAS A BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—King Edward, who was born Nov. 9, 1864, is to-day celebrating his birthday quietly at Sandringham, surrounded by his family. He is in excellent health. Many congratulatory messages reached the king during the day, and many valuable presents were received from the sovereigns of Europe and personal friends. The customary salutes were fired by the warships at the naval centre.

The Mark of Fine Linings

Don't be deceived in buying linings. Make sure of getting those that will meet your highest ideals of elegance and service by asking for Hydegrade linings (name on selvage). That stamp means surpassing beauty in color and finish; it means durability and wear that are a marvel to every user.

Moreover, Hydegrade linings are as light as can be made, consistent with good wear. There's one to fill any and every need. Be sure you find the trade mark "Hydegrade" on the selvage.
